MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT AND THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

As we look back on 2022-23, it is incredible to think about how much LOVE accomplished this year.

We launched a three-year strategic plan, moved to new headquarters, and strengthened our team with the creation of a senior leadership structure to better support program delivery. And all of this, in a post-COVID world, having to navigate the uncertainties of our collective “new normal”.

Thankfully, with the support of our devoted board of directors, our incredibly generous donors and our super-human staff team, LOVE has remained well-equipped to do what we do best: help youth thrive.

This is essential because we, along with researchers and practitioners alike, have observed that the crisis around youth mental health persists and has even become more exacerbated over the last few years. From 2011 to 2016, the proportion of youth across Quebec reporting an elevated level of psychological distress increased from 23% to 32%. More recently, within Montreal, 4 out of 10 youth reported high levels of psychological distress according to a study by Jeunes en Tête. Moreover, media reports point to an increased concern for youth violence, with school service centres in Quebec reporting twice as many violent acts as in 2019.

Taken together, the need for LOVE has never been greater. That is why we launched our three-year strategic plan. We know that by setting objectives, we can achieve important results for the youth we serve. In this first year, we reached 47% more youth, delivered 16% more programs and 36% more workshops on Sexual Education. We are well on our way to ensuring more and more youth develop the emotional intelligence and resilience needed to face life’s challenges and we are grateful to our many supporters, donors and youth who are helping us make this happen!

VISION AND MISSION

Mission

Engage Youth. Build Bridges.
Realize Potential.

LOVE supports youth to thrive through programs and healthy relationships that build emotional intelligence and help overcome the challenges they face. Program participants emerge with greater resilience, heightened skills, and the confidence to be inspirational leaders.

Vision

To be a leader in building innovative and sustainable programs that promote the mental, emotional, and social health of youth.

Values

INNOVATION: We respond to the needs of our community through our unique, dynamic and adaptive approach.

GROWTH: We nurture the development of our youth and communities and strive to increase our impact across Greater Montreal.

INCLUSIVENESS: We welcome and accept individuals of all backgrounds and build bridges between them.

RELIABILITY: We steward relationships and use evidence-based approaches to consistently uphold the quality of our work and the trust of our stakeholders.

TRANSPARENCY: We commit to clear, honest, and open communication, and are accountable to our youth, staff, donors and supporters.

OUR STORY

LOVE was founded in 1993 by Sheila (Twinkle) Rudberg who was inspired to end the cycle of violence in the lives of youth following the death of her husband by a 14-year old boy, who himself was a victim of violence. LOVE quickly gained recognition in Quebec and has since launched successful programs in Halifax and Vancouver.

What started as a small, grassroots, youth photojournalism project running out of the basement of Montreal's Dawson College soon blossomed into a well-established national program, warmly recognized by governments, schools, corporate and community organizations for the meaningful impact it was having on young people. LOVE currently runs programs across Canada in Quebec, British Columbia and Nova Scotia.

Our youth

For close to 30 years, LOVE (Québec) has been committed to changing the lives of thousands of at-risk youth, providing a safe environment to those who have experienced bullying, abuse, hate crimes, suicide ideation and self-harm. We work with a great diversity of marginalized youth, including those who are low-income, as well as members of the BIPOC, LGBTQ+ and neuro-diverse communities. Over 70% of LOVE (Québec)'s youth have experienced some type of trauma, either in their homes or in the wider community.

PROGRAM INNOVATIONS: ONLINE LOVE PROGRAMMING

Cedric Joseph
Co-Director of Programs,
Online Programming Lead

With the tremendous support of Mouvements Desjardins, LOVE Quebec has been able to reach marginalized youth living in isolated communities through the delivery of our online Media Arts Program.

The program was launched during the pandemic as an alternative for reaching youth when public health measures prevented us from gathering in person. As a silver lining, we discovered that we could continue to leverage technology to support more youth living outside of Montreal through this online program.

This year, we animated our first ever post-pandemic online program at Chateauguay Valley Regional High School in Hemingford, Quebec for 44 students in the alternative program and the work-oriented training program at the school. With support from the New Frontiers School Board and the Monteregie West Community Network, students participated in a series of workshops led by LOVE's Co-Director of Programs, Cedric Joseph.

As Cedric explains, he had to think creatively about how best to make the program as accessible as possible. For the photography workshops, for example, youth used their cellphones and sent him their pictures through a special group created for their class on Instagram. The platform was also used as a way of checking in with the youth to keep communication open between sessions.

Generously supported by

To celebrate the end of the program, a vernissage was organized in the school library, showcasing the youths' photos and written pieces. Cedric and Robyn surprised the students by attending the event in-person.

"In my 35-year career, I have never seen such a collaboration to address the needs of students who have difficulty finding work and who need further development of their personal skills," exclaimed the school's principal in an article featured in Hemingford's local newspaper, the Gleaner.

"They have learned how to communicate kindly and respectfully," explained their alternative program teacher, who also said that the program has "helped kids find a way to fall in love with school again."

Online programs were also delivered this year at Batshaw Youth and Family Center's Prevost Campus, to 3 groups, L'Avenir, Springfield, and St. Rose. Through these programs, we were able to help 20 youth strengthen their emotional intelligence, with a special highlight being that we were able to meet them in person during an Indigenous Celebration Day organized by Batshaw.

Finally, we continue to foster relationships with Indigenous communities including Waswanipi and Misstisini, with the goal of delivering an adapted and culturally relevant version of the Media Arts Program online to youth from these communities.

BODY & SELF: SEXOLOGY

Under the objectives mandated by the Ministry of Education, our team has developed workshops to meet a growing demand in the Quebec school system. Sexual education in primary and high schools, now a full-fledged responsibility of educational institutions, helps to prevent sexual violence. LOVE, having worked in the field of violence prevention for 30 years now, has specialized its services by developing its sexological component.

This includes:

- The development of workshops covering all the themes required by the Ministry of Education of Quebec (primary and secondary). These workshops have been adapted by our team to ensure the inclusion of sexual and gender diversity in the MEQ mandatory themes.
- An evaluation system for the sexuality education workshops offered by LOVE, allowing us to better tailor our services to the needs of the young people who have received our sexuality education workshops.
- A sexology curriculum, which can be offered to our partners and through LOVE's after-school activities, of around 8 workshops to complement the compulsory sexuality education content mandated by the MEQ.
- A training course on sexual and gender diversity for school staff, aimed at equipping adults working with young people. A secondary training course is also currently being created by our team. This will enable us to continue sharing information and deepen our knowledge of how to create an inclusive space and develop supportive attitudes to counter sexual and gender-based violence in the school environment. The aim of these training sessions is to provide our partners with the tools they need to act as agents of change in their environment.

Audrey Brunette

Co-Director of Programs

This year, 42 school staff attended our training on sexual and gender diversity in the school environment, which will have a direct impact on enriching an inclusive, violence-free school environment for the young people in our community.

Through our work and that of our collaborators, present and future, we must continue our fight against sexual violence. This change cannot be achieved in a single year. It will therefore be essential to pursue our mandate by developing the sexological component and fostering new collaborations that will enable us to work with a greater number of young people, while maintaining the quality of our services at LOVE.

LOVE'S PROGRAMS: FROM SMALL MOMENTS TO BIG IMPACT

Liezl Lee

Director of Strategic Initiatives

Did you know that through LOVE's weekly programs, we connected with 377 youth on a regular basis this year? Not only does connecting regularly with youth allow us to build trust with them and foster connections with their peers, but it also allows us to witness incredible moments of personal growth. This is really the essence of what happens to youth who participate in our programs.

In one case, for example, what started off as a physical altercation between two participants was diffused by a LOVE coordinator who used crisis intervention and conflict resolutions skills to demonstrate to these two youth that there are other ways to communicate instead of using violence. In the end, this teachable moment allowed the youth to realize that their entire conflict had been based on a misunderstanding and that instead of using violence, they could more effectively use their words in a safe space to better understand one another.

In another case, the trust fostered between the participants created the space for a youth to come out to their parents, and they shared their journey with the group as it was unfolding. This all began from the weekly check-ins, where youth share their highs and lows of their week. After months of getting to know this youth, being present, and fostering safe space, their peers provided this youth with the safe space needed to muster the courage to come out to their parents about their true identity. LOVE was there for this youth when they needed it most and has undoubtedly been part of a life-changing experience for them.

The work we do in programming goes beyond animating workshops and delivering curriculum. LOVE staff must adapt to the needs of the youth on any given day. This may mean giving them a little more space because they are going through a challenging time and need to get something off their chest, or it may mean doing a mindfulness activity to burn off some excess energy. Above all, it is about meeting the youth where they are at, being there for them, and planting the seeds that will help them flourish into the thriving person they strive to become.

COMMUNITY COLLABORATIONS

Last winter, LOVE was visited by the Citoyens D’Aujourd’hui and Les Explorateurs de L’Engagement, a youth initiative from France! The Explorateurs de l’Engagement are a group of young people who travel the world and meet with youth initiatives and organizations to talk about youth engagement in their communities. They learn about different youth organizations across the world and then work on a booklet highlighting different approaches they have noticed in different countries! Together, we discussed LOVE’s mission, programs, and how we help youth become the leaders of tomorrow through our programs and activities.

LOVE partnered with Wicked Saints Studios this year and had the chance to be part of a mission in their newest game, World Reborn. World Reborn is the first AR activism game – that is completely free to play on mobile!

LOVE hosted a game night at the office for youth and staff to try out World Reborn and attempt to find LOVE’s mission in the game.

LOVE partnered with GiveRise this year, a Canadian online consignment and thrift store that supports local causes. GiveRise is an online e-commerce and shopping platform on which Canadians can buy and sell second-hand items and choose a partner charity or school to donate a percentage of their sales to! Vendors and buyers alike help support a variety of organizations including LOVE.

SPECIAL EVENTS

The Austrian Society of Montreal's one of a kind Viennese Ball takes place every year and is not only a celebration of Austrian culture but also an incredible fundraising event for local charities. The event raises funds for organizations that work with marginalized youth, such as LOVE Quebec, while connecting people with Austria's rich traditions and history through cultural performances and music. This year, we were invited to speak at the Ball about our mission and highlight the work we do. We are very grateful for the support that the Ball and the Austrian Society has given us over the years.

LOVE was invited to be part of TELUS's MTELUS 5 year anniversary celebration! As a celebration of the 5 year anniversary of the iconic MTELUS venue, TELUS hosted MTELUS+5, a free concert for its customers. The lineup featured a list of incredible Quebec-based and local artists such as Ariane Moffatt, Valaire, Fouki, and more. The concert highlighted the diversity and talent of local artists – all for a great cause.

As part of TELUS' community involvement projects and its commitment to local causes, they donated $5 for every person attending the concert, raising a total of $10 000 for LOVE!!

It was even more special for LOVE as the concert was Camélia, a youth from our programs' first concert ever!

A LOVE alum hosted a benefit comedy show, donating all the proceeds to LOVE. The night was a huge success, with laughs shared, hugs exchanged, and an incredible donation of $960 made to LOVE Quebec. We are grateful for the community support but more importantly, incredibly proud of our alumni!

LOVE GOES BACK TO KINKORA

Our first return to Kinkora after years of the pandemic was nothing short of a success. This year's camp was held over three days and involved a plethora of events and activities. The youth participated in a talent show, in outdoor activities, a karaoke night and even saw a double rainbow!

Moreover, thanks to the support of POP Montreal, LOVE youth and staff were invited to participate in a special artistic workshop led by Megan Kanerahtenha:wi Whyte (She/Her), who is an artist, art educator and art therapist from the Kanien'kehá:ka First Nation and Dayna Danger (They/Them), who is a 2Spirit/Queer Metis/Saulteaux/Polish visual artist who is currently based in Tio'tia:ke. The artwork was featured at the POP Montreal festival and represents the relationship between humanity and nature and the need for compassion towards the environment, oneself, and others.

Coming back to camp after two years and seeing the youth's faces light up with excitement reminded us of the impact of events like this one, that bring everyone together in a safe, understanding, and unifying environment. We are confident that all youth and staff created memories for a lifetime!

LOVE IN THE NEWS

LOVE was featured in an amazing CTV News article that highlighted our mission, our programs, and the past 30 years of LOVE's work.

During the button-making workshop led by our coordinators Kelsey and Maiya, LOVE youth discussed social issues that are important to them and learned about various social causes they can support and how to. We are so happy and honored to have been visited by CTV News and are honored for the continued support from our network and communities!

LOVE was featured in the September 2022 issue of Montreal Families, Montreal's #1 parenting and family publication! We were so pleased to be included in a publication that, just like us, promotes the well-being and success of youth and students.

The article highlights LOVE's core programs and services as well the growing need for programs like ours in today's complex world. It is so important that families and youth know of the necessary resources that are available to them, and that they know they can reach out to LOVE and enroll their teens in LOVE programs in their very own schools or at our office.

Programs aim to help teens build confidence

For some people, photography is a hobby or a pastime, but for the youth at the non-profit organization LOVE Quebec, it is a way of connecting with their emotions and expressing themselves. The organization's Media Arts Program, which enrolls hundreds of youth in dozens of schools every year, invites young people to explore their feelings through photography, writing, and journaling. The aim is to gain confidence by developing one's emotional intelligence, which includes being self-aware, having the ability to identify and regulate emotions, show empathy, and have social skills.

LOVE, which also has chapters in Nova Scotia and British Columbia, offers after programs for youth all over Montreal as well as online to the Indigenous community of Waswanipi.

The organization was founded by Sheila

"Twinkle" Rudberg, whose husband died at the hands of a 14-year-old boy in an act of violence. Twinkle realized that the teen was a victim of violence as well and started LOVE with a mission to reduce youth violence in our communities.

Apart from its Media Arts program, LOVE has three other main programs:

The Leadership Program offers workshops on public speaking, writing, and social issues in order to empower youth to become agents of change by embracing their voices and giving them a platform where they can feel heard.

The Sexology and Sexual Education Program offers workshops to help youth develop their knowledge of issues such as body positivity and consent while following the curriculum required by the Quebec Ministry of Education.

The Athletic Media Arts Program adds a health and wellness approach by addressing one's emotions and feelings through physical activity and team sports.

Offered in schools and youth centres, a growing list of schools request programs every year and the organization's coordinators work with educators to see which ones best fit the school.

Programs are offered in 12- or 24-week sessions, and coordinators go into schools weekly to give workshops. There are also after-school activities and workshops for youth from all over Montreal, which can be found on the organization's social media accounts.

"Mental health challenges among young people have been on the rise, even prior to the pandemic," says Robyn Dalton, the executive director at LOVE Quebec. "Rates of anxiety and depression are increasing, and these can have detrimental effects on a young person's ability to thrive and pursue their dreams. That is why our work is so important today."

If you think that your teenager would benefit from one of the programs, visit LOVE's website to see if they are offered in your child's school.

LOVE relies on grants and donations from the community to be able to offer its free programs and activities. "So whether you are able to donate directly or spread the word about the important work we do, we are always grateful for the support," Dalton said. Desjardins Together for our Youth Program supports around 3000 youth initiatives every year and aims to help youth aged 5 to 30 succeed in their educational, professional and social lives. The campaign works alongside youth organizations in various fields to help over a million young people thrive.

Through this collaboration, LOVE youth spoke about their time with LOVE, what the organization means to them, and how they discovered us. The stories were turned into audiovisual pieces to bring the stories to life.

Media Arts Program

The Media Arts Program uses tools such as photography, journaling, and group discussions to help participants develop emotional intelligence, self-confidence, critical thinking and empathy among other skills. The program follows a detailed curriculum, where sessions are delivered weekly by our LOVE coordinators, either in a school, community centre or our LOVE office, during a 4 to 8 month period. The team works closely with each participant to ensure that they receive the support and encouragement they need to succeed. Participants are provided with the materials needed to take part, whether it be cameras, journals, or art supplies. Each session has a specific set of objectives to be achieved by taking part in the different activities.

Leadership Program

The Leadership Program builds off of the Media Arts Program and offers a series of workshops and activities throughout the year with the goal of empowering youth to become agents of change in their communities. Our young LOVE leaders gain greater self-esteem and develop public speaking, writing, and interpersonal skills. The program culminates in a National Leadership Camp which invites all LOVE chapters to participate. The youth are encouraged to forge new friendships and even lead workshops of their own.

Sexology Program

LOVE's Sexology Program was developed by qualified educators with backgrounds in sexology and sexual education. Drawing on our expertise in developing emotional intelligence, the program takes a deeper dive into issues such as consent, body positivity, and more, including topics required by the Quebec Ministry of Education.

Sexual Education Workshops

LOVE (Québec) offers in-school workshops for high school students in all grade levels in fulfillment of the Quebec Ministry of Education requirements in Sexual Education, developed and delivered by our qualified staff. Workshops promote safe space, inclusion and a celebration of diversity – all aligned with LOVE's values.

Athletic Media Arts and Wellness Program

The Athletic Media Arts and Wellness Program combines our expertise in developing emotional intelligence, with a focus on physical health and mindfulness. The program integrates photography, group discussions and journaling with athletic and mindfulness workshops, using physical activity and sports to foster greater self-esteem, self-expression skills, and resilience among youth and emphasizes the connection between mental and physical well-being.

NEW SKILLS AND OPPORTUNITIES WITH COVEO

Coveo, a global leader in applied AI, is also a corporate leader when it comes to its commitment to giving back. Having joined the Pledge 1% movement, Coveo generously donates 1% of their time, products, profits and equity to non-profit organizations. With a priority focus on knowledge and education for youth in vulnerable social groups, LOVE Quebec is proud to be among their charity partners and have been incredibly lucky to benefit from their generosity in a number of ways.

Reaching more youth: Coveo's generous financial commitment to LOVE Quebec has meant that we have been able to increase our reach and impact more youth. We have increased the number of programs we offer and have expanded into more schools, which has meant that more youth are able to benefit from the mental health and educational support we provide.

Inspiring our youth to dream big: Coveo hosted a group of LOVE youth for a tour of their incredible headquarters in downtown Montreal. Throughout the event, our youth had the opportunity to meet with and learn from a variety of people working for Coveo. They spoke to them about the work they do, how their career path brought them to Coveo, and what advice they might have for our young people. LOVE youth and staff left the day feeling energized and inspired, thanks to the wonderful team at Coveo.

Providing us with the tools we need to succeed: We received a gift of 5 laptops from Coveo, which have upgraded our team's access to better technology. Plus, their staff have also shared their time and technical expertise, helping us leverage online tools to benefit our operations.
